LEAN ON ME

To Ilaya County Library
Compliments of the Yearbook Staff - 1973

I'm like everyone else
Seeking what,

I don't know

Why,

I have no reason

In isolation I wonder

Why go on

With someone else

I haven't time to wonder.

I am being

I need you

You don't have to have the same face everyday

You don't have to have the same ideas

You just need to be

I need you to lean on

We are brothers in life,

And I need you so that I will know,

So that I know

I am brimming with life.

Reach out and touch the sky.
Go West young man.
Catch the rainbow.
All cliches of the past.
Now minds seek new goals
Now minds make a new world.

Souls put down barriers of the past
Souls build other ways to tread
Hands grasp other hands
Joined people travel a new road
The sky is where the road is going.

Up & Down
Up & Down
Up & Down
Behind the eyes, your mind sea-saws in the past.
A friend or just anyone touched the earth or flew skyward . . .
 depending on the spring of your legs.
The favor returned by him being there.
Up & Down
Up & Down
Up & Down
 If only you could send someone skyward now
 If only he could still return the favor
 If only the sea-saw held us tight.

"Everyman, alike"
Funny, we believed them
The mouths that moved from souls that couldn't care.
We've started now together
Many fear us.
We look fairly at each other
Not like forgers who say the color or non-color isn't there.
But like souls who say
I see, I care, I love
Come on Brother
Let's go this way.

Catherine Pauley

My friend, people say,
Is lazy and stupid.
I don't think so, they
Really haven't tried to know him.
My friend is quiet
In his thoughts and opinions.
He is observant
Notices all the little things.
My friend can't figure that math problem
But he knows people.
He thinks of others,
 others that are his friends.
His moments of thought by far outweigh
His moments of talk.
My friend is liberal, they say
Or just scorned because they are all the same.
He's very talented with his hands
But to them, that doesn't matter.
My friend is daring
To challenge established rules.
He stands defiant,
A little awkward, maybe, but it's him.
My friend stands against the wind
Like a sail against the elements.
His eyes sparkle when a thought passes.
He leaps to express himself.
His life is never ending.
My friend is like no one else.
Maybe that is why
We all need and value him,
And he is so sad because he doesn't Know that we do.

Mary Rourke '73

I'd like to go before the giver of life
and return my certificate of birth.
I cannot cope with people,
life,
or the hardness
and coldness of it all.
Should a single act of love be shown . . .
A person cannot care for himself unless someone cares for him.
Katherine Manning '73

From the plywood speaker's stand
He laughed at me yesterday
Today I laughed at him
We both know . . .
We're human.

Guidance Counselors People Who Help

Who am I? What do I hope to achieve in life? The teenage world is filled with scores of perplexing problems and decisions. For this reason, the guidance department at FCHS plays an important roll in both the academic and social lives of the students.

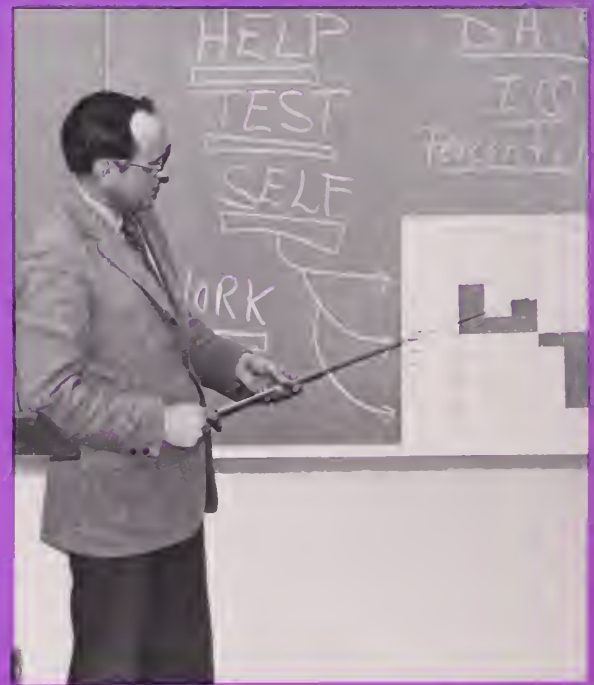

Guidance counselors, Nola Albert and Car-nice Mannon, studied student's records and gave them advice on how they could utilize their ability in a way that will lead to a happy and profitable future. They guided each student as an individual and helped him seek answers to any questions or problems he faced.

Sylvia Chesson and Allen Nester carry on a lively debate in Government.

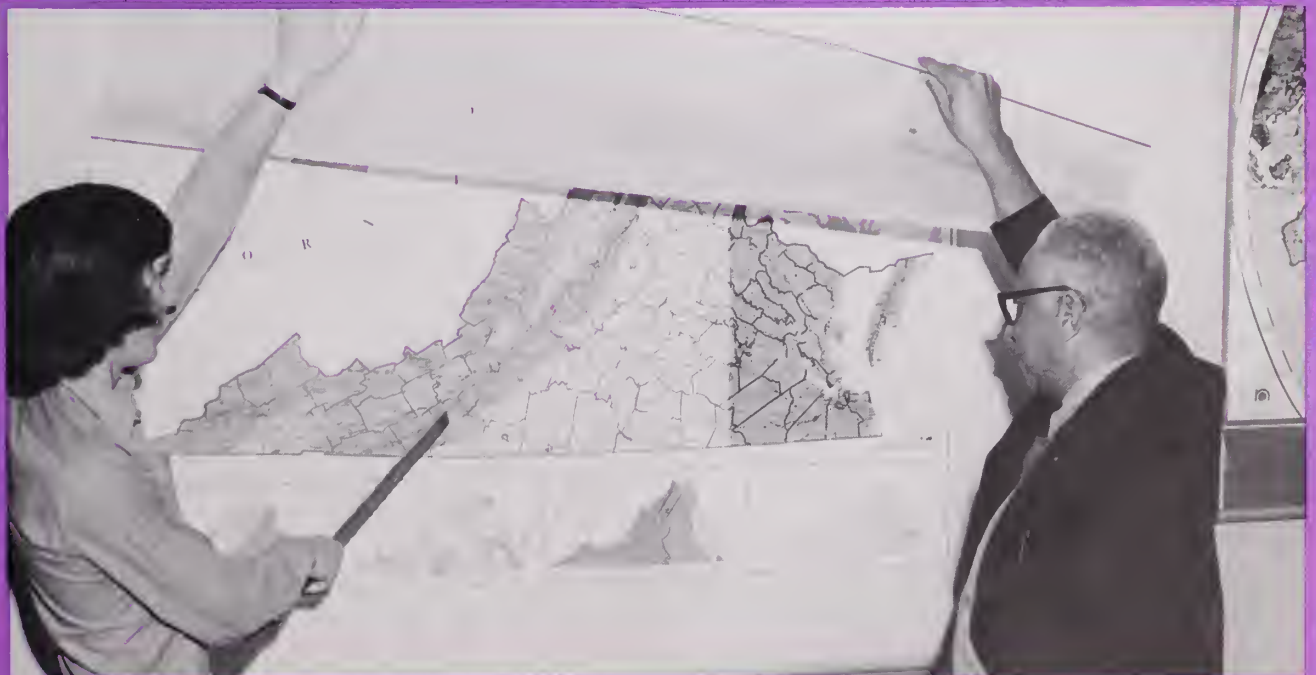

Freshmen learn how small the world is and yet how far away.

Social Science A Timeless Adventure

Current events, such as the war in Vietnam during the fall and the long-awaited peace in January, the election of a president, and changes in governmental policies brought an increased awareness of the national and international scene. This awareness was used effectively by the faculty in Social Sciences.

Eighth graders and Freshmen could elect to take History or Civics. Sophomores were given a choice between World History and World Geography. Juniors carried out in-depth study of their country and state in United States History and Virginia History. Seniors struggled with such obstacles as Parliamentary procedure, famous court cases, Communism, and the functions of government in Government Class. Economics was offered as an elective.

Government classes took advantage of the election year. They debated the election issues in class and presented a campaign to the student body over the intercom. After the campaign, they conducted a mock election. Government classes also took a field trip to court and visited the local governmental offices. Perhaps a high point of the year was hearing Jim Dalton, a 1970 FCHS graduate, speak on his visit to Russia.

A visiting speaker shows a math class how to use mathematics in industrial engineering.

Mathematics Is a Challenge

Logarithms, quadratic formula, Pythagorean theorem, mathematical induction and functions may sound like a foreign language to some people, but to the students in the Mathematics Department, they are everyday words. Teachers in this department strive to install in students an understanding of math that will be of value to them in their future, no matter what vocation they select.

Math I and II, Pre-Algebra, Algebra I and II, Geometry, Trigonometry and Advanced Math were offered students this year. In several classes, students worked in small groups while the Vocational Lab served the purpose of helping those students who required individual aid.

Advanced Math classes had the opportunity of hearing visiting speakers give practical uses of higher math in various industries. One speaker was very helpful in giving students information on specific math which is needed in pursuing different careers. In early spring, higher math students took a difficult national test sponsored by the Mathematics Association of America.

Fine Arts — The Creative Life of FCHS

Advanced art students work on paintings to be exhibited in art show.

The creative life of Floyd County High was centered around the two divisions of the Fine Arts Department. The Art Department offered basic classes for budding artists and advanced classes for the more experienced students. The curriculum included the rudiments of drawing and the use of various media and techniques. Later, the students employed their knowledge when working on individual projects. Art history strengthened each student's background and helped him to form his own style and character of work. Projects were then exhibited at an art show in the spring.

The Music Department included the band, advanced choir and beginning choir. The band performed at various school functions, and helped promote school spirit through its activities. Choir classes were filled with vocalizing and practice for concerts. Students were provided with a sound, yet exciting musical background.

Just look out the window any fall day during sixth period, and watch the band strike up.

Science Initiates New Curriculum

Striving for individual awareness within its students, the Science Department initiated a new curriculum this year. Eighth graders were required to take Physical Science which gave them the background they need to go on to more disciplined courses in science. After the eighth grade, students could choose between Earth Science and Biology to complete the required two credits needed in science to graduate. Advanced courses included Physics and Chemistry for students who planned on entering college or nursing.

Lab work became a time for answering questions related to the natural world. It was not unusual to see a stream of water eroding the earth, a volcano erupting, or minerals strewn around on each table. Students built model houses and wired them for electricity. Imagine their joy when lights actually came on and illuminated their miniature projects.

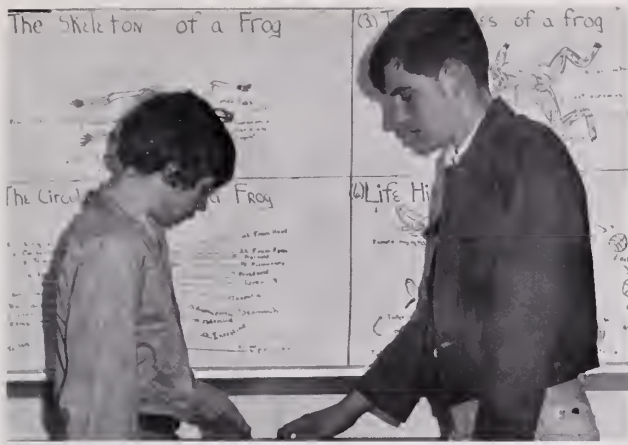

In Biology labs, the smell of formaldehyde, combined with the sight of a dissected frog, gave some students queasy stomachs. Students did in-depth study of the functions of both plants and animals through lectures, dissection and microscopic observations.

Watch out! The volcano is erupting.

Biology can be fun too.

Yes, it's time for the frog.

Language — A Tool For Living

Barbara Ketner pantomimes in Drama.

All phases of life are in some way connected with communication; therefore, English is a required subject for all five years spent in high school.

Eighth graders received a good foundation in basic grammar alternated with literature. Freshmen and sophomores studied grammar in more depth and went into the composition of short stories, plays and poetry. The juniors and seniors were challenged by the more advanced aspects of grammar, but were primarily concerned with writing themes, term papers, book reviews, and creative compositions. Extensive study revolved around the development of various themes and techniques in American and English literature.

For those students with specific interests, the curriculum included drama and journalism.

English students were encouraged to take advantage of the excellent material in the Learning Lab during their study hall.

French Is Only Foreign Language Taught

Knowledge of a language prepares one for the future and promotes a better understanding of the people of foreign countries. French I and II are offered to students at Floyd County.

Emphasis at the beginning of the year was on noun declensions, verbal conjugations, translations, and vocabulary. The language master was very helpful in learning correct pronunciation.

Classes were brightened by studies of French culture, geography, and history. Visual aids and literature by French authors were used to develop an awareness of the language and to achieve a finer appreciation of the contributions the French have made to our culture.

A new concept in studying French was through the use of games. Students especially enjoyed learning to play chess in French.

Vocational Studies Include Agriculture, Home-Economics, Business, Industrial Arts, Learning Lab and Industrial Education

Floyd County High, being situated in a rural area, offered vocational agriculture to students beginning in the eighth grade. In addition to classroom lectures, a well equipped shop was available for learning through doing. Mr. Keith, Agricultural teacher, realized the need for better training, particularly for those individuals planning to go into full-time farming. Accordingly, the curriculum was based upon the needs, interests, and capabilities of individuals to give them a comprehensive background in farming operations and management.

Mr. Keith makes sure Randy Gallimore uses the saw correctly and safely.

Home Economics

Home Economics courses were offered on two different levels. Vocational classes trained students for jobs in Food and Clothing. Other classes helped girls develop their potential abilities concerning the home. Training was offered in foods and nutrition, child care and development, housing, home nursing, clothing and textiles.

In-depth studies in child development allowed students to observe first graders at the Floyd Elementary School. Senior class girls visited the Day Care Center and assisted with activities for a class period.

Students learned to cook and serve meals for small groups. The Foods Service class learned to cook and serve in quantity by preparing a full course meal for the county supervisors and school board.

Through training, in Home Economics, many girls assume the responsibility of making their own clothing and that of other members of the family. Some girls took advantage of their training by designing and making their wedding dresses.

Numerous industrial machines were available to aid the Clothing students in learning mass production techniques. Looms were also used to weave cloth to permit the study of material in more depth.

Better Business Education Means A Better Business World

Hard problems require complete concentration.

Modern equipment was added to the Vocational Business Department. This enabled students to prepare for a wide variety of jobs in the business world.

Block programs were begun last year and were offered in clerical accounting, typewriting and related occupations, and stenographic, secretarial and related occupations. Each course provided a thorough knowledge in its particular area and a good background in the connecting fields. A student who has completed the prerequisite Typing I and General Business, and a block program, is ready to enter the field of work without further training.

B. P. Simpson and Donald Atkins keep busy at their work.

Vocational Students Prepare To Enter The Labor Market

A Learning Lab was a new addition to the Vocational School. This was a pilot program in the state under the auspices of the Federal government. Students using the lab came from various departments. English, Math, History and Science students benefited immeasurably from this program. Individual work on the individual's learning level motivated them to learn and rewarded them with success.

Industrial Arts emphasizes precision rather than artistic ability. Neatness and accuracy plays a major role in shop as well as mechanical drawing. Work in wood and metal developed craftsmanship.

At the present time there are three vocational offerings in Trade and Industrial Education. Included are Auto Mechanics, Building Trades, and Industrial Maintenance Mechanics. Each is a two year program (1080 hours) in skill development and related technical information preparing students to enter directly into the labor market of the respective fields or to further their educational training in institutions of higher learning such as Trade and Technical Schools, Community College, etc.

Auto Mechanics provides training in automotive principles of operation and general repair. Building Trades is designed to help students acquire basic skills and knowledge in building construction and the building industry. Industrial Maintenance Mechanics is designed to help the student develop a technical knowledge of machinery used in industry along with their operation and maintenance.

Students work individually in a well equipped Learning Lab.

Training in use of power equipment is only part of Building Trades.

Industrial Maintenance includes work on a lathe.

Students Develop Body And Mind In P. E.

The physical education programs were designed to help students develop their mind and body through exercise and health education.

Early in the fall, and again in the spring, physical fitness tests were given each student. The use of body building equipment and calisthenics improved coordination and strength while stimulating student interest in the many activities of the department.

Health courses in prevention and cure of disease, first aid, drugs, and other health problems were included. A Forestry Warden taught a series of lessons on firearms in the boy's classes.

Driver's training was taught in the classroom and fourteen hours of behind-the-wheel training given to those eligible.

Juniors and seniors were able to take P. E. as an elective. This was a welcome break for many from the mental strain of academic classes.

WORKING TOGETHER, all cheerleaders strive to create pride in Floyd County High School. Each girl puts forth an earnest effort to help achieve that goal.

During their summer vacation, the Varsity Cheerleaders spent a week in a summer clinic learning new cheers, a variety of stunts, and getting in shape for the following year. They were rewarded for their earnest effort and hard work when they received first place for the most improved squad.

One of their major challenges of the school year was introducing new ideas at pep rallies and promoting overall school spirit. Proudly wearing the colors of black and gold, they were always there to support their team and represent the fans of FCHS.

An upcoming Pep Rally is discussed with anticipation and nervousness.

The 1973 Junior Varsity Cheerleaders contributed more things than just cheering at games. Posters, new ideas, skits for Pep Rallies, and their time were only a few of these. Long chilly nights were spent in support of the Buffaloes, with after-effects such as colds and sore throats. Selling programs at varsity games to raise money for the cheerleaders was also a job of the J.V. squad.

But all of this was done willingly, gaining all of the experience needed to be better than ever.

1972 will be a year to remember for the Floyd County Buffaloes, but not because it was a successful year. 1972 was a strange season for the Buffaloes, a season where one of the best teams in the Buffalo history managed to win only one game and tie two although they moved the ball all season.

The Floyd County Buffaloes opened the season against the Blacksburg Indians and came off the field deadlocked in an impressive but disheartening 7-7 tie. They traveled to Narrows to play their second game. The first half was a defensive battle, but in an exciting finish the Buffaloes came from behind to score in the last few minutes of the game and win their first and only game. Galax was the next opponent and again the Buffaloes played good hard football but lost by 5 points. Radford, No. 1 in state last year, gave the Buffaloes a bad defeat; however, they came back strong the next week to tie George Wythe.

The Buffaloes and fans would like to forget October 6 when the Dublin Dukes shut out the Buffaloes and left star running-back David Smith with a broken leg.

The rest of the season was a down-hill fight with a lot of bad breaks until the last game when the Buffaloes rallied to give Pulaski a hard fought contest even though they still came out on the losing end of the score.

Yes, it was a strange year, and expectations did not materialize, but the team was a good team and Floyd County was proud of them.

J.V.'s Have Frustrating Season

"If at once you do not succeed, try, try again." This was the motto of the Junior Varsity team throughout their winless season. They hustled and hit hard, but their efforts were in vain. However, the playing ability of the team improved as the season progressed, thus preparing tomorrow's varsity players.

Exciting games — but too many loses. This describes the varsity basketball season. Is losing contagious?

Perhaps the highpoint of the year came when Floyd only lacked two points beating Radford, the New River District and Region IV Champions.

Darrell Vest, with an average of 14 points per game, was high scorer for his team. Darrell was also high in foul shooting with 79% from the line. Larry Mannon came out on top with the highest number of assists and Larry Sowers racked up the honors in rebounding. Tony Stuart joined the starting line-up in the latter part of the season and showed a great deal of improvement.

The J.V. Basketball team completed its season with a 2-18 record. Although the team lost 18 games, many of the losses were by small margins. The team showed signs of improvement as the season progressed, especially on defense. One of the major problems for the J.V. team was the lack of height for rebounding, but with some improvement and determination the J.V. players from this year will be a welcomed addition to the varsity for next year.

Their district record boasted 9 wins and 1 loss, and overall they piled up 15 victories while suffering only 3 setbacks. They also won their last 11 consecutive regular season games.

Senior Donnie Thompson led the Buff pitching staff with a 10 win — 2 loss performance while star catcher Paul Weeks, another senior, headed the hitting attack with a .450 batting average.

FCHS had good individual runners and field event men in 1972. Johnny Walker, competitor in six events, was the leading scorer on the team. He placed fourth in high hurdles at District and went on to the Regionals.

Larry Mannon came in first in the District in broad jump and second in triple jump. The 880 relay team, Gary Spence, David Smith, Larry Mannon and Johnny Walker, finished fourth in the District, fourth in the Regional and went on to state.

Congratulations on a winning season.

Women's Lib Plays Its Part in Golf

Ricky Vest and David Strickland prepare to tee off.

Women's Lib became a factor in 1972 sports. For the first time, girls participated in competitive intermural sports.

Although we still had a young team, a great deal of improvement made this the best season ever at FCHS. The team placed fourth in District and Ricky Vest went on to Regionals where he placed fifth in individual score.

Mature In Responsibility And Sportsmanship

Floyd County girls had the opportunity to participate in volleyball, basketball and tennis intramurals. These activities helped the athletic females to mature in responsibility and in sportsmanship.

Girls are trained physically, mentally, emotionally and socially. This extracurricular activity served as a fun time as well as a learning time.

Somewhere there are answers
The right answers
Somewhere.
Offers in each room pull me.
I listen,
I decide
What I pay attention to.
Over by the window
You gaze silently out
Looking for answers of your own.

Maybe they're different,
I don't know.
I like to think they're like mine
We just find them in different places
Different ways.
However we get them
I hope the answers you find
Say love and care.
Mine do.

Go-Round of Activities

Sponsors: Mr. Worley Bishop, Jr., Mr. John Harman, Miss Ruth Ann Slusher, Mrs. Janet Keith, Mr. Kenneth Raines.

A school is not measured by its buildings, classes, faculty, or facilities alone. The final measure must be found in the students who go out the door with diplomas in hand to enter higher education or the field of work.

The class of '73 has spent five long years in preparation for their final moment. They have now climbed the last hill on their way to graduation. Whatever past joys and sorrows they have, they must look forward to a new future. The past will be remembered because the five years spent at FCHS have shaped the life of each senior in some way.

With only one more year left at FCHS, 156 Juniors busily began to prepare for their future and the long awaited dream of becoming a senior.

Early in the fall, Juniors ordered their class rings and were the second class at FCHS to receive their rings during their junior year. They actively participated in College Day and faced the challenge of College Board. At a special assembly in October, 42 Juniors were tapped into the Beta Club.

The class of '74 contributed tremendously to extra curricular activities and school spirit. They joined with the seniors in becoming team leaders and varsity cheerleaders.

Perhaps the greatest thrill and job was preparing for the Junior-Senior Prom held each spring. This is the only formal event of the year.

Sophomores

One hundred fifty three sophomores began to count their credits carefully as they approached the halfway mark through high school.

The advancement to a sophomore brings with it added privileges — such as attending the senior assembly, varsity sports, cheerleading, choral, and clubs. Probably the most welcome privilege is Driver's Education and a chance to obtain a drivers license.

The Sophomores added tremendous spirit and pep to FCHS. They participated diligently in intramurals, pep rallies, the magazine campaign, and went on to win second place for decorations at the homecoming dance.

The class of '75 continued to work hard all year and were proud of their accomplishments as they anxiously awaited another step toward graduation.

A new and exciting educational experience awaited eighth graders. Six teachers instead of one, and five minutes every hour to get lost or, worse, get into trouble were more than some could handle at first. This year was a strange and enjoyable time but also a time to mature and accept responsibilities.

"Quality Education" has become a key word in Virginia schools. To implement the standards and objectives set down by the State Board of Education, a close relationship between administration, faculty and students will be necessary. Rain Fails To Dampen Homecoming

Although rain came down in torrents, a football game, a homecoming queen, and a successful dance combined to make Homecoming 1972 a special event.

Highlighting the evening was the crowning of Donna Sweeney as the queen. Nancy Agee and Norma Carden were the Senior members of the court.

Many activities were carried out during the weeks preceding Homecoming. The SCA sponsored a decoration contest for the dance. Classes began searching for new ideas around the theme of Halloween. The Class of '73 won the contest for the second year.

Against the background of the gaily decorated gym, students and visitors danced to the music of the Orions.

The Senior class chose Donna Sweeney to reign as Homecoming Queen.

Larry Mannon catches a pass and heads downfield.

Senior class decorations take first place in Homecoming Spirit Contest.

Senior class chose Connie Page above ten others as Snow Queen.

Floyd's Christmas Parade was highlighted by the Snow Queen on a float built by the FCHS Beta Club. Floyd County High School Band and Floyd Jr. Band provided entertainment.

Santa Claus arrived by horse and buggy with plenty of candy for the children.

Haven's Chapel won first place for best float.

Dramatics Class and Choir Pay Respect to Madonna and Angel

Students received a break from exams to watch a play presented by the drama class under the direction of Miss Synan. The play "Christmas Windows" gave a child's point of view of Christmas or how people observe Christmas without the real spirit of giving. Against a background of the manger scene, the final scene showed the child, symbolizing the Christ child, being welcomed. The Madonna, Sharon Bell, and the angel, Ouida Shank, were elected by the senior class.

Noteworthy Students Graduate With Honors

An honor is something special in the life of anyone. It is no different with FCHS students. The school is very proud of these students who have combined enthusiasm with long hours of work to achieve excellence in various fields.

Awards are given in the different academic departments in the spring. Other awards are given for character and citizenship. The presentation of awards is the climax of a student's school life as well as a student's effort.

Five Members of Choir Sing In All-Regional Chorus

Under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Smith, the advanced and beginning choirs sang their way through an exciting and eventful year.

Hours of practice by the advanced choir were spent preparing for the performance of Vivaldis "Georia" at the Christmas concert, a highlight of the 1972-73 choral year.

Five members of the advanced choir were chosen to sing with the All-Regional chorus.

The beginning choir learned the basic fundamentals of choral work such as diaphragm usage in singing, proper pronunciation, of words and musical vowels.

Band student's expressions vary throughout the game.

Whether the music was classical or "pop," the largest band ever at FCHS could be found practicing every day, sixth period. This group of musicians was always ready to provide music for school programs, creating the proper atmosphere for assemblies and churning up excitement at football games.

The band traveled to all but one of the away football games to participate in half-time activities. Hard practice paid off when they won second prize in the Christmas Parade at Radford, and when they ushered "Santa Claus" to Floyd.

Funds raised by their annual Band Follies will help finance a trip to Myrtle Beach.

Spring will bring many activities such as the Spring Concert, The Dogwood Festival, and, at last, the long looked for trip to Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Through numerous and varied activities, this talented group, under the direction of Mr. Elwanger, has provided pleasure for itself and others.

Highland Scops - Better Than Ever

Karen Smith, Donna Sweeney, and Kathy Quesenberry choose articles for Highland Scops.

Lori Gregg, Cathy Vest, and Connie Page proofread articles before deadline.

Highland Scops, the literary magazine, presents the best creative writing done by Floyd County High students.

The magazine staff started the year with a handicap — not enough students on the staff. In spite of their size, and in further spite of a typewriter that functioned only sporadically, the staff made plans to publish one issue and to top the 1972 Scops' rating of second place in Virginia High School league competition.

Endless hours were spent by the editorial staff behind the scenes reviewing material, rewriting, editing, and typing. Photography and art work inspired by stories and poetry added interest to the magazine.

BISON- Your Year's Record

Producing an accurate 1972-73 school year summary of words and pictures was the job of the Bison yearbook staff. Twenty-two people put in many long hours of hard work during and after school to produce a better yearbook.

The first week of school started with staffers organizing sales and soliticing ads. Editor Susan Guilliams began work on the organization of the Bison. Robert Link kept his camera clicking all year to get that "just right" picture. Drawing and redrawing layouts, cropping pictures, writing copy and typing were just part of the tremendous effort put forth in publishing this year's record of life at Floyd County High School.

Each six weeks, the Journalism class is seen delivering papers to eager readers. The paper is distributed to the 850 students, school faculty and administration staff, and exchanged with other schools in the district.

Ability and hard work goes into the preparation of each edition of the paper. Designing page lay-outs, soliciting ads, writing feature stories, taking pictures, and typing up copy and proof-reading is a never ending task for the CRIER staff.

The S.C.A. serves as a channel of communication for F.C.H.S. and promotes well being between students, administration, and community. The S.C.A. members strive to obtain interest and enthusiasm for the betterment of our school. It is through the S.C.A. that both school and social activities are planned and carried through.

During the year, the S.C.A. has been in charge of flags, physical inspection, sock hops, the Homecoming ceremony, and the Christmas assembly.

Highlights of the second semester are the election and installation of the new S.C.A. officers, the May Day Carnival, and a state convention at Kempersville High School in Virginia Beach. A special job this year was to work closely with the administration to prepare a program and a handbook for the orientation of seventh graders and new students.

One of the many duties of the S.C.A. is to assist with physical inspection.

The principal purpose of the Beta Club is to encourage sound scholarship and to emphasize achievement and character at FCHS. A student must have attained an average of 90 or above during their high school career.

The annual tapping ceremony was held at a special assembly in the fall. This year, 8 seniors and 42 juniors met the eligibility requirements for membership bringing the club to a total of 87 members.

The Beta Club built the Snow Queen float for the Christmas Parade and collected clothes and toys for a needy family at Christmas.

Members attended the State Beta Club convention in Richmond, and enjoyed an evening at the theater as a social affair.

In addition to group activities, individuals provided leadership in many fields of study as well as extra-curricular activities.

Quill and Scroll is an international honor society that encourages high school participation in journalism and creative writing. All members of the FCHS chapter must be in the upper third of their class and must have worked on some phase of a high school publication.

The year opened with an induction ceremony for 13 new members. Schoolwide creative writing contests were held each semester with cash prizes being given to the winners. These contests both inspired and rewarded journalistic activity. Other activities during the year included basketball and football concessions, guest speakers, and a tour of a publishing company in Roanoke.

Ecology - A Key Word for KVG

Ecology-minded boys in the tenth through twelfth grades had the opportunity of helping keep Virginia a beautiful state.

Under the supervision of the Virginia Forest Warden, and Mr. Lonnie Keith, members of the KVG squad were trained in methods of fire prevention, fire supervision, and conservation of forests and wildlife.

In addition to spending one entire day in the field learning forestry methods, members fought fires whenever needed. The following boys served as crew leaders: Indian Valley crew leader, C. Sowers, Check crew leader, C. Conner, Willis crew leader, C. Goad; Floyd crew leader, C. Davis.

Interesting and preparing students in the teaching profession is the main objective of the FCHS F.T.A. Led by Mrs. Alta Turman, this was effectively accomplished by having interesting programs.

Mrs. Janet Shelburne, special education teacher at Floyd Elementary, spoke to the group on retarded children. As a follow-up, students observed her techniques in the classroom.

A highpoint of the club's activities was attending the annual FTA state convention where they gained an insight into the preparation for their careers as educators.

The Library Club, consisting of 44 members, was taught the general functions and operations of the library. They were given a chance to put this knowledge to use by serving as library aids during their study halls. With members running errands, working at the circulation desk, and collecting over-due fines, the librarian had more time to handle the jobs that required trained personnel.

Club Emphasizes Career Training

The Neighborhood Youth Corp is a federally supported work-training program for high school students. The objectives are two-fold— to help students financially support themselves while still in school and, through counseling and club activities, to adjust to post high school training in the world of work.

During the school year 1972-73 the club had emphasized programs and activities related to career training. This has included field trips to community colleges and industries in the area as well as speakers at the monthly club meetings.

OFFICERS: B. P. Simpson, Reporter; Joe Farmer, President; David Thompson, Treasurer; Edwin Chesson, President-Elect; Donna Sweeney, Vice-President; Roger Sewell, Secretary.

The Senior Science Club members began the 1972-73 school year with the ambition of bringing home to Floyd County the E.C.L. Miller Trophy presented each year to an outstanding club in the state. Everyone was soon busy with his committee assignment. The "Workshop Committee" received permission to travel to science classrooms in the elementary schools to present demonstrations and to encourage the younger students to develop an interest in individual investigation. An attempt to recycle discarded textbooks was begun by the "Community Service Committee." The "Research Committee" established a fund to help qualifying students finance their science projects. In March, the entire Club helped prepare for the Science Fair. As a result of the efforts of the "Field Trip Committee," everyone enjoyed a visit to Grandfather Mountain.

For several members, the highlight of the year was a trip to Williamsburg in May to present their research papers to the Virginia Junior Academy of Science and to represent the club in the E. C. L. Miller competition.

FROG AND ITS PARTS

Junior Science Club members ponder over the dissection of a frog.

Jr. Science Club creates a sociable atmosphere for eighth and ninth graders as well as encourages participation in the field of science and science affairs.

The major events for the '72-'73 school year included a bulletin board, guest speakers, concession stands, and a field trip pertaining to ecology. The members spent many hours working on the President's Environmental Merit Awards Program and on local and regional science fairs.

Affiliated with the Young Men's Christian Association, the Hi-Y strives to promote Christian spirit throughout the school and community.

This year, members of the club gave the invocation before each home basketball game. They also traveled to the Salem Civic Center to witness a basketball game. Representatives attended district and state meetings where they exchanged changing ideas of youth in religion.

Through events ranging from community projects to club panel discussion, Jr. Tri-Hi-Y members worked hard to create a strong chapter.

In an effort to bring happiness to the children at Joy Ranch the club gave a Halloween party and contributed gifts at Christmas. Believing that a clean community is a beautiful community, the club conducted a clean-up campaign in the spring.

Objectives of F.C.H.S. Tri-Hi-Y Clubs

Julia Perdue registers Becky Yearout at District Meeting.

The Floyd County chapter of the Senior-Tri-Hi-Y experienced a busy and rewarding year filled with various activities. These activities supported their goal to create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of christian living.

The club served as host for the District Meeting and successfully ran Yvonne Boyd for secretary. Funds were used to adopt a child in Free China. Through correspondence, the club learned about the character and the needs of the child. At Christmas time, the members sent cards and visited the disabled men at the Veteran's Hospital in Salem.

Members gather around the piano and practice music before visiting the VA hospital.

Future Homemakers of America is a national organization that studies the ethics of good homemaking. Through FHA, its members strive to better the home, to prepare for later life, and to plan activities related to homemaking.

FCHS had a large and active club this year. Included in this year's activities were the Mother-Daughter Banquet, Fashion review, State FHA Convention, and National FHA week.

Interesting programs were presented at each monthly meeting. In November, members heard a panel discussion on problems facing married students at FCHS.

FCHS, with its enrollment of 856, kept the custodial staff and cafeteria workers busy. The custodial staff with the help of NYC worked day and night shifts to keep the building and grounds clean. Names such as Mable, Jimmy and L. C. were familiar to all students. They helped every student at one time or another, whether it was to open a jammed locker, or help recover lost property.

There were also many responsibilities in the cafeteria. Each day the cafeteria force prepared well balanced meals and served lunch in three shifts. Floyd County ranks high in the state in percentage of students eating in the cafeteria.

There are many long winding roads leading to FCHS, and nearly all the student body ride the big yellow bus. The responsibilities facing bus drivers, (men, women and students) were great. Some drivers spent as long as four hours going to and from school each day. Dedication, and a great deal of patience was necessary to handle their job.

Mr. Whitlock and his able staff kept the buses maintained and always ready to roll.

Mr. Campbell led the safety patrol, who volunteered to help the drivers maintain safety for all students.

Advertisers

Cooperation between the school and the community plays a key role in making "quality education" a reality.

FCHS students rush into town each afternoon to sip cokes and munch potato chips or simply to gather and discuss their activities.

Business leaders realize that students are an important part of their consumer market and support the school in many of its various activities.

The BISON staff wishes to thank the businessmen of Floyd County for advertising in the 1973 BISON.

The collage of life consists of many colors
many faces
many feelings
All glued together to form the overall picture.
If there were no glue, it would hold pieces, unrelated, put together to form a whole.
All working, accenting, supporting each other.
A complete view, solid, secure.
